DRAFT AGENDA

INTERPARLIAMENTARY COMMITTEE MEETING

European Parliament - National Parliaments

Conference on the Democratic oversight of Intelligence Services in the European Union

Thursday, 28 May	09.00 - 12.30 14.30 - 18.00
Friday, 29 May	09.00 - 12.00

European Parliament, Brussels

Room: JAN 2Q2

Organised with the support of the Directorate for Relations with National Parliaments

Background and purpose of the meeting

Whereas the operations of intelligence authorities fall within the competence of Member States, and Article 4(2) TEU clearly states that national security is the sole responsibility of each Member State, recent events have pointed to the need to increase cooperation between national intelligence services and their respective supervisory bodies across the Union. The development of an EU Internal Security Strategy is also a clear sign of the necessity of improving cooperation and exchange of national information. Moreover, while the prevention of security threats, such as terrorist attacks, remains strictly a national competence, their prosecution requires legal and judicial cooperation, as expressly recognized in Article 83 TFEU. Finally, increased mobility within Europe and the further development of the online environment necessitate a closer cooperation between Member States to ensure that fundamental rights are fully respected.

In this context, this conference aims at bringing together relevant national and European actors in the field of intelligence services and their oversight to discuss recent developments and their repercussions in their respective fields.

09.20 – 12.30	OPENING SESSION: The repercussions on intelligence oversight of a rapidly changing world

Rapid global recent developments have led intelligence services to undergo considerable change in terms of the nature and focus of their work and to exponentially increase the scope and scale of international cooperation. This represents a growing challenge to existing national oversight and accountability mechanisms.

How have intelligence services adapted to the changed circumstances? What are the current and future trends in international intelligence cooperation (and what kind of cooperation)?

What are the repercussions of the above on national oversight and accountability mechanisms? How should those be adapted in order to ensure effective scrutiny of intelligence activities?

14.30 – 15.45	WORKSHOP I<sup>1</sup>: Upcoming challenges for oversight bodies – changing nature of security threats and rapid technologic developments
----------------------	--

Implementation of national oversight mechanism and bodies across Europe has been uneven in terms of the mandates and powers in each Member State. This situation has been highlighted by many current and upcoming challenges such as the changing international nature of security threats including radicalisation, “foreign fighters”, and the development of the Dark net. This combined with the revolutionary development in data storage and analysis capacities, the increase of internet bandwidth and the development of mobile computing devices may enable intelligence services to collect and process vast quantities of personal data to counter security challenges.

How do these phenomena affect intelligence activities and what are the repercussions of these trends for the oversight of intelligence?

Are oversight bodies sufficiently equipped in order to carry out their tasks appropriately, in view of the above? What form of additional (technical) expertise or powers would be required for that purpose?

How can we better achieve accountability of intelligence gathering and cooperation?

What are the challenges of the increase threat of international, cross-border threats including in relation to radicalisation and so called “foreign fighters” for intelligence oversight?

How does the rapid advancements in technological developments and the mobility of data impact on the role of national oversight bodies?

Chair: Mr Claude Moraes and Dr André Hahn, Chair of the Parliamentary Oversight Panel, German Bundestag

15.45 – 18.00	WORKSHOP II<sup>1</sup>: Fostering cooperation and exchange of best practices between intelligence oversight bodies in the EU

Recognising the need for increased cooperation between national oversight bodies of intelligence agencies in Europe, a platform has been established allowing oversight bodies to share common problems and best practices (ENNIR). However, such cross-border cooperation is still haphazard, limited and ad-hoc.

What practical measures could be taken to foster intelligence oversight cooperation in Europe (e.g. secretariat, link to existing network of national parliaments, sharing certain specialized resources/expertise)?

What are the main barriers and how could they be overcome (e.g. language barriers, confidentiality, 3rd party rule, different forms of oversight and national legislation, security clearance, risk of leaked documents)?

Is it recommendable to develop within Europe collaborative mechanisms or minimum standards for intelligence oversight? If so, how could these be developed in practice?

----------------------	--

The role of a committee of inquiry is to provide some scrutiny on government or intelligence services action. Its mission is to highlight the malfunctions in a public case under discussion. The committee formed by parliamentarians should collect pieces of information either on given facts or on the management of public services, in order to submit their findings to the assembly which created them.

What are the necessary conditions (duration, composition, extent of investigative powers, etc.) for the committees to perform their duties properly?

What are the problems most often faced by committees of inquiries in their work (e.g. access to classified information, summoning of witnesses, publication of report etc.) and how can they be overcome?
