Factsheet: The Finnish Eduskunta

1. At a glance

Finland is a republic and a parliamentary democracy. The Finnish Parliament (Eduskunta) is a unicameral body. Its 200 deputies are elected by direct, proportional and secret universal suffrage for a mandate of four years. The Parliament enacts legislation, decides on the state budget, ratifies international treaties and oversees the Government.

The Eduskunta meets in three major formations: the plenary session makes final decisions, the committees prepare the files and the parliamentary groups define the political orientations. The Eduskunta has quite extensive powers to formulate Finnish EU policy. Parliament's position on EU affairs is generally expressed by the Grand Committee, which serves as Parliament's EU committee. Finnish Constitution provides that the Eduskunta is involved whenever an EU dossier touches on the Eduskunta's legislative or budgetary power and may also assume responsibility for other dossiers if either the Government or the Grand Committee (or the Foreign Affairs Committee for CFSP issues) so decides. The Grand Committee's position is normative for the Government.

The current Finnish coalition government under Prime Minister Mr Antti Rinne (Social Democratic Party/ S&D) came into office on 06 June 2019. It is a 5-party coalition formed by the the Social Democratic Party (S&D), the Centre Party (ALDE), the Greens (Greens/EFA), the Left Alliance (GUE/NGL), and the Swedish People's Party (ALDE). The government's programme in English is available here.
